Association for Professionals in Infection Control and Epidemiology, Inc.

January 2012

Dear New APIC Member,

APIC Greater New York Chapter 13 would like to extend our warmest welcome to you as a new member. Your experience in this chapter will be educational and collegial. You will have many opportunities to network with other professionals representing varied facilities and expertise in Infection Control within the New York area.

Meetings take place on the third Wednesday of every month at 2:30p (except July and August) at Lenox Hill Hospital located at 100 East 77th Street & Lexington Ave, NY. Monthly meetings are scheduled with qualified speakers on pre-selected topics. You will receive minutes of every meeting, agendas of upcoming meetings, and flier reminders with topics to be presented via email. Meetings take the form of presentation and general question and answer after each presentation. We also have a brief chapter business meeting following the educational presentation. Be sure to sign in when you come to the meetings!

To facilitate your transition into the chapter, we offer you this packet containing useful at-a-glance info. In the packet you will find the mission/vision for our chapter, brief role descriptions of our local chapter board members, a list of board members contact information, the APIC Greater New York Chapter 13 website and more. All of the information included in your packet (and more) can be found at our chapter website (www.apicnyc.org) or the national APIC website (www.apic.org).

If you have any questions please contact us or one of the Board members as listed on the contact sheet.

Sincerely,
Membership Board, 2012

Association for Professionals in Infection Control and Epidemiology, Inc.

About APIC

APIC's mission is to improve health and patient safety by reducing risks of infection and other adverse outcomes. The Association's more than 13,000 members have primary responsibility for infection prevention, control and hospital epidemiology in health care settings around the globe, and include nurses, epidemiologists, physicians, microbiologists, clinical pathologists, laboratory technologists and public health practitioners. APIC advances its mission through education, research, collaboration, practice guidance and credentialing.

The organization, which is based in Washington, DC, is led by an elected board of members who volunteer their time and expertise.

APIC was conceived in 1972 in recognition of the need for an organized, systematic approach to the "control" of infections acquired as a result of hospitalization.¹ Originally called The Association for Practitioners in Infection Control, the name was changed to the Association for Professionals in Infection Control and Epidemiology, Inc. in 1994 to recognize the organization's maturation and evolution into the broader context of health care delivery in this country. This includes the study of non-infectious adverse outcomes and the movement of care outside the traditional health care system, specifically the hospital.

Vision

APIC Greater New York Chapter improves the health and safety of patients, employees, and the members of the Greater NY community by serving as the premier association for devising, communicating and implementing state of the science infection prevention and safety techniques.

Mission

APIC Greater New York Chapter improves the healthcare milieu by reducing risks for the transmission of infection and related adverse outcomes.
